

The Emerging Industrializing Countries

Where Next?

Frequently we are asked the question “where is manufacturing investment capital flowing after China”.

The chart on this page was developed in 2008 based on United Nations, World Bank, and other source data.

The data show 3 groups of industrializing countries. These data need to be seen in context to be understood.

Most importantly, infrastructure to support generalized manufacturing and general availability of trained labour both need to be factored into total costs associated with doing business in these emerging markets.

Description

Developing countries excluding LDCs (Least Developed Countries)

-  Newly industrialized countries
-  Other emerging markets
-  Other developing economies
